Dear Joshua Pruitt:

After finalizing your account with Johnson Property Management, LLC, there is a balance remaining due on your account of $4,193.32. This payment must be made through either your tenant web access account, money order, or bank guaranteed cashiers check and sent to the proper PO Box listed above. Personal checks will not be considered as payment in this situation.

Please note that per the rental agreement, if this account is turned into a professional debt collection company, collection fees will be added to the account to cover the collection costs. Please make full payment directly to JPM within 7 days of today's date, so that we don't have to turn it in to collections and charge you more

JPM will now provide seven (7) calendar days from today's date for you to provide full payment for your account balance per the zero deposit program agreement. If the account balance is paid within the seven days, your account will be closed and your rental reference will report this accordingly. If the proper amount is not paid within the time provided, the account will be legally collected on per the zero-deposit program agreement, and any collection fees will be added to the final balance. As a generality, it is much to your advantage to reconcile your account with JPM as opposed to a collection agency. Not only will it help your credit status, but it will save you money and from many unnecessary conversations with the collection agency.

Sincerely,
Johnson Property Management, LLC
